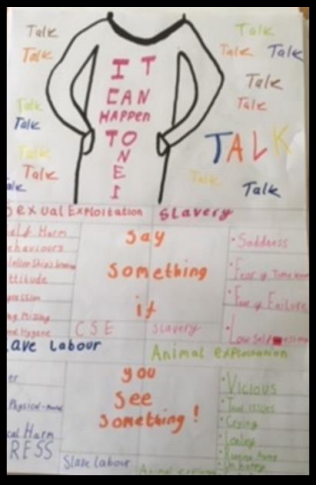
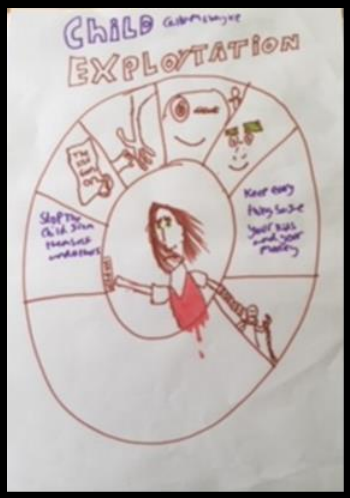
CSE EXPLOITATION

This week the Hub has tackled a particularly heart-wrenching topic that many would perhaps rather ignore: Child Sex Exploitation (CSE). However, with our school's primary mission being to best secure the health and wellbeing of every child that walks through its doors... such a topic could never be overlooked.

The focus on exploitation is in preparation for our drop down day on March 20th (18th of March being CSE awareness day) where we will be having 'Loudmouth' Drama Company visiting the school to highlight such causes.

Two of our more senior pupils, Alicia and Charlie, kindly aided in disseminating information to spread awareness through Meadowcroft's daily Thrive sessions within the week. Both stood up to the plate, wowing staff and pupils alike; they even led various sessions as teachers, under the supportive guidance of Miss Edwards' preparation. Alicia in particular spoke of how enlightening it was to step into the shoes of a teacher: "It's bloody difficult!" Suffice it to say, we are immeasurably proud to have them as responsible advocates for the school.




Furthermore, students have used their creative talents to produce some posters and explanations of what they believe exploitation is, as an effort to raise awareness. Check out a few below:
